A black and white photograph of a snowy forest. Tall, thin trees with bare branches stand in a row, their trunks covered in snow. The ground is a smooth, white expanse of snow. The overall atmosphere is quiet and wintry.

Conclusion

Leadership is not a word which is easily defined.

The most visible leaders are of course the members of the school's publications, student council, and athletic teams. These visible leaders are only a fraction of what makes up the whole group which is prevalent throughout our school.

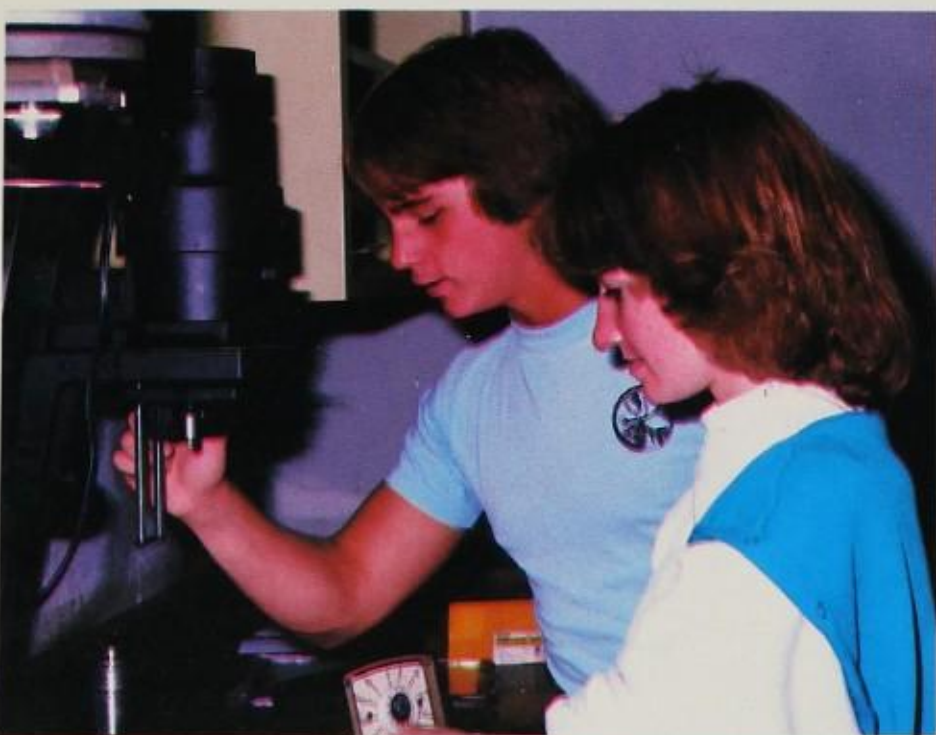

Those students who take the time to explain something to someone in need of their help, are showing leadership just through their unselfishness. They realize that they could be the person asking for help tomorrow.

These same students may be capable of making a friend laugh, when he or she is upset — or listening and understanding when a friend needs some support.

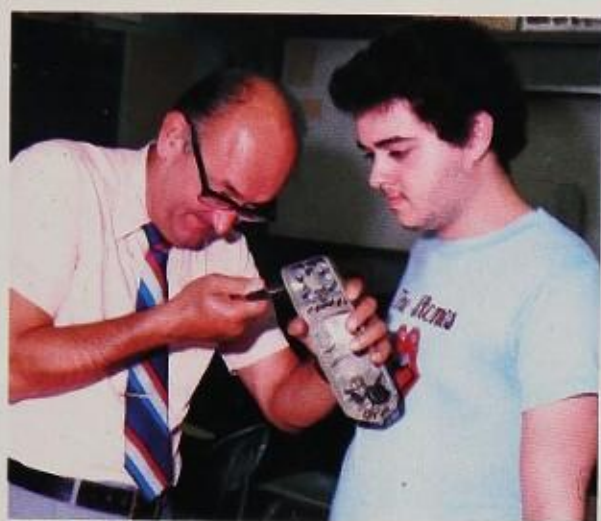

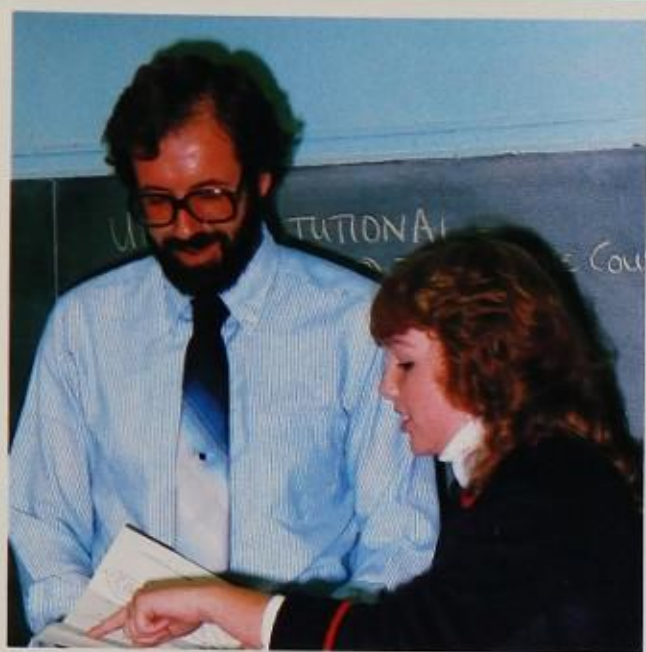

Little things such as these are true acts of leadership.

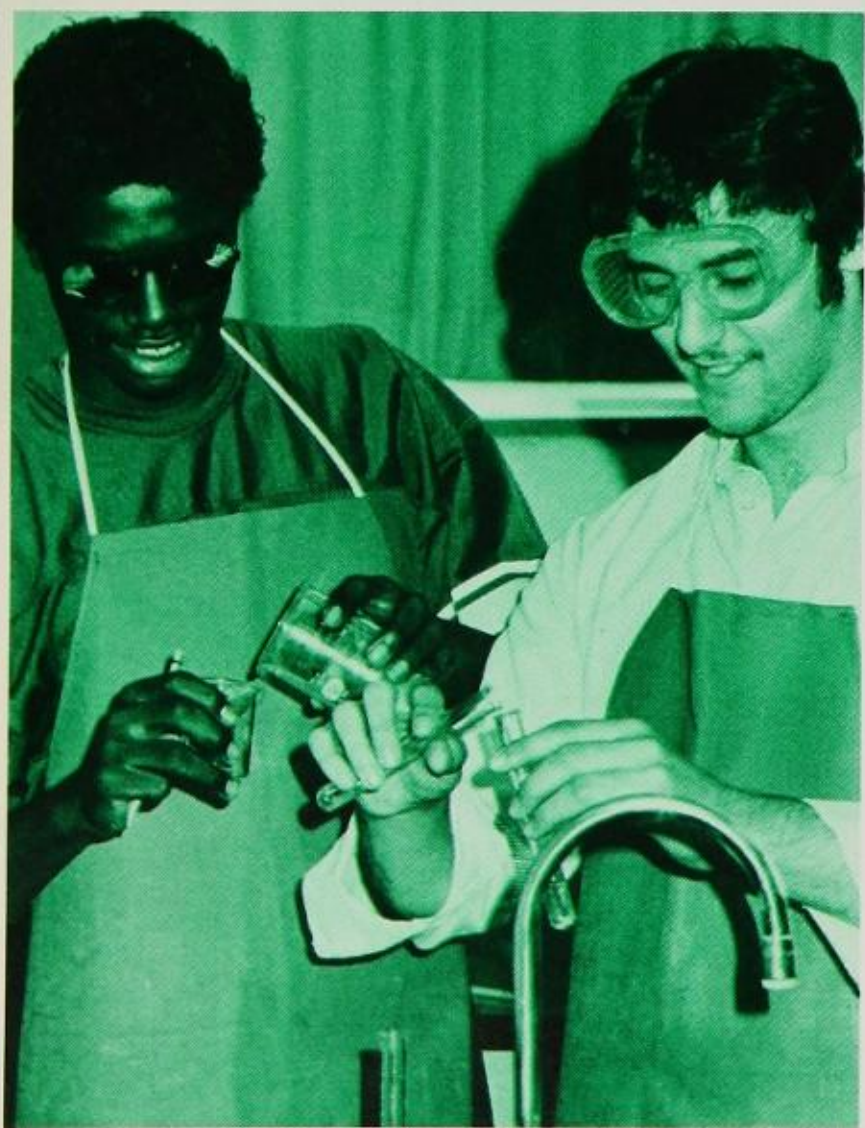

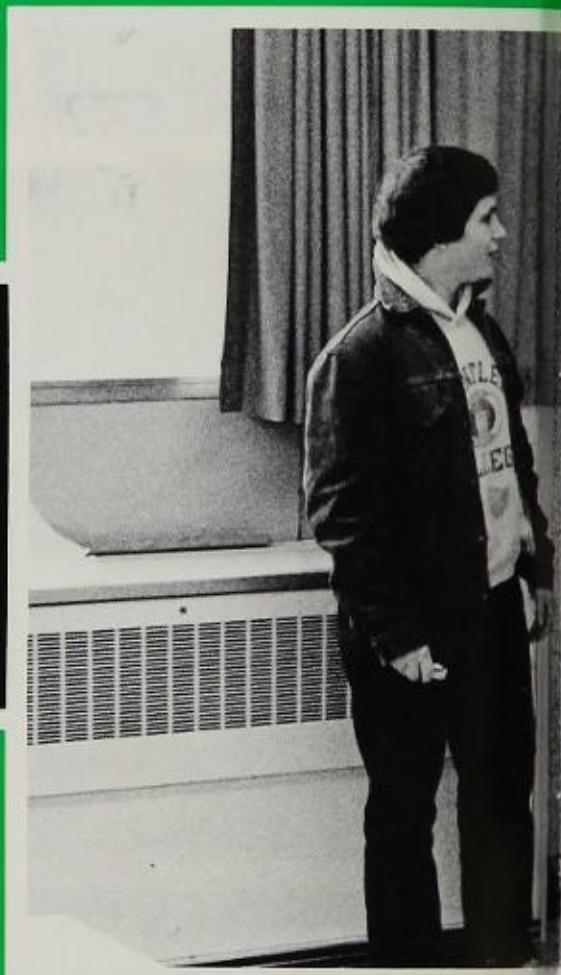

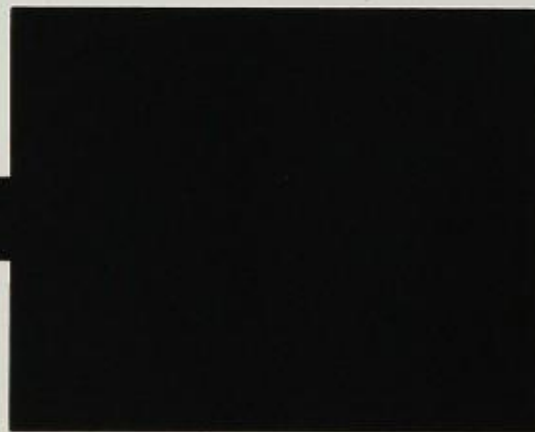

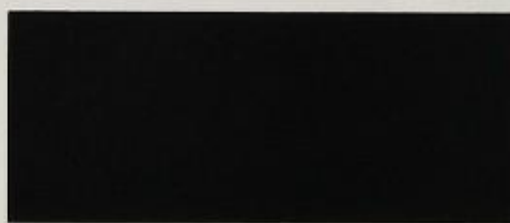

Everyone has their problems — those that try to solve them are the leaders. They realize that they can't always cope alone and aren't afraid to talk with friends, counselors and teachers.

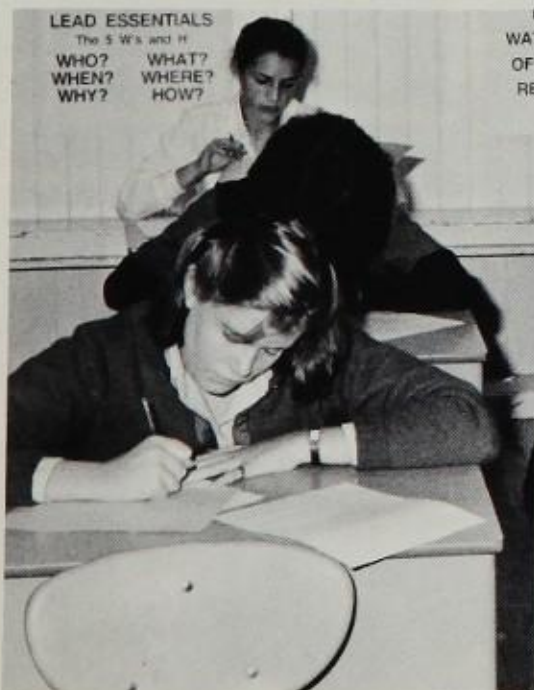

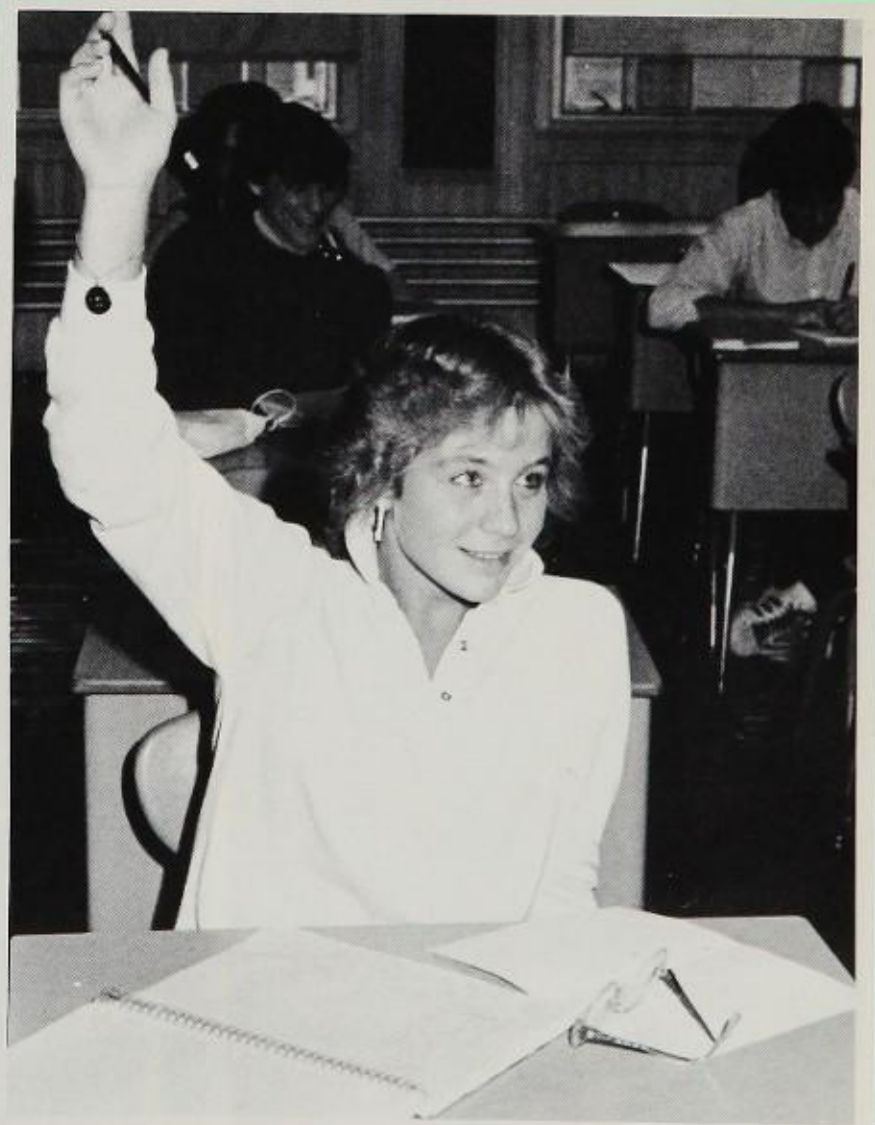

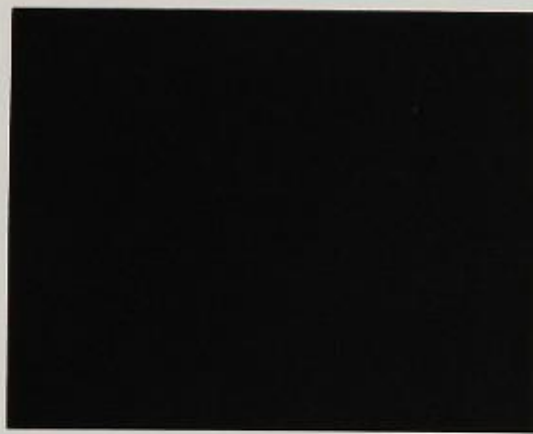

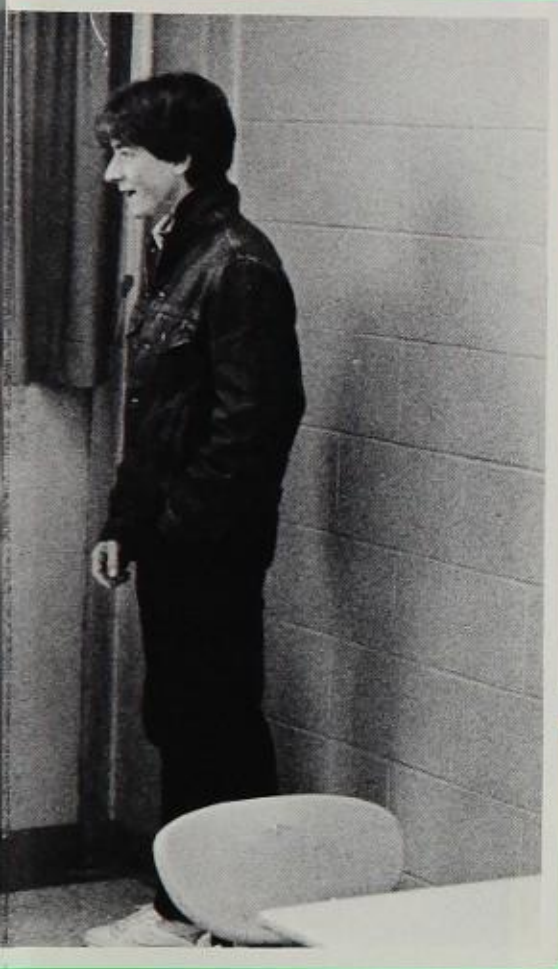

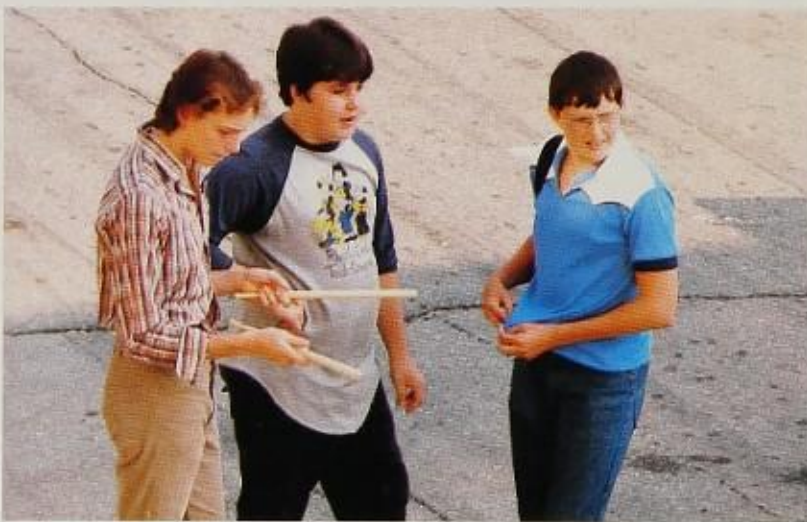

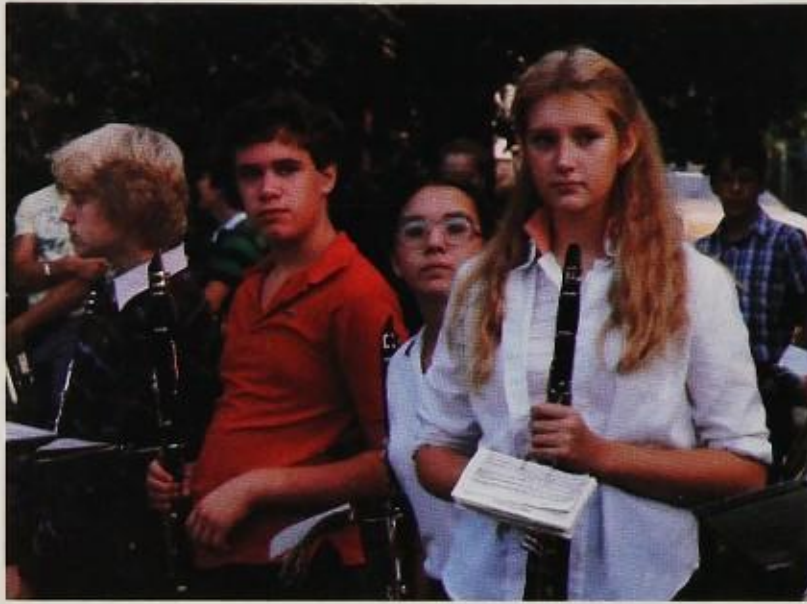

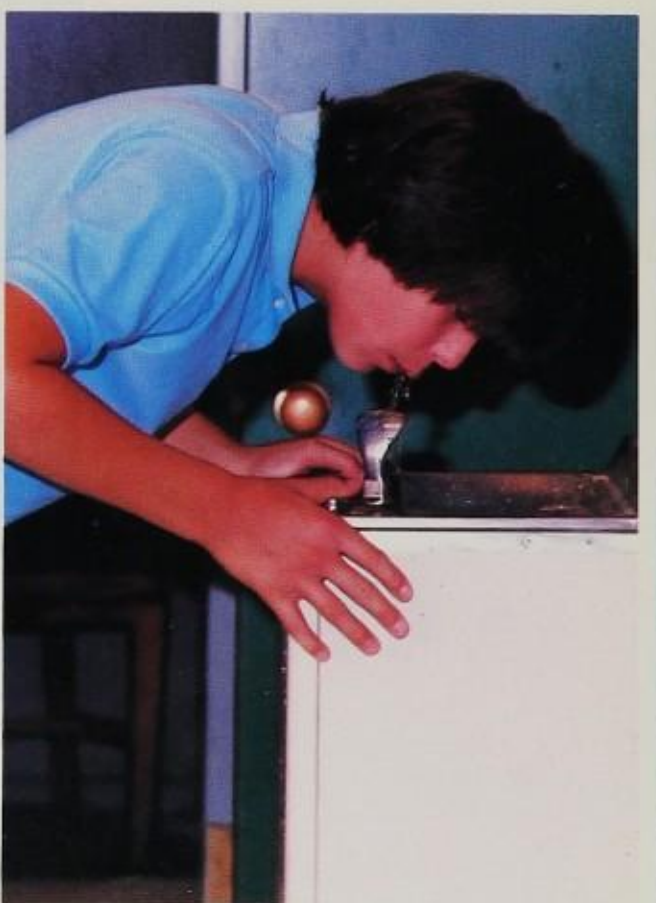

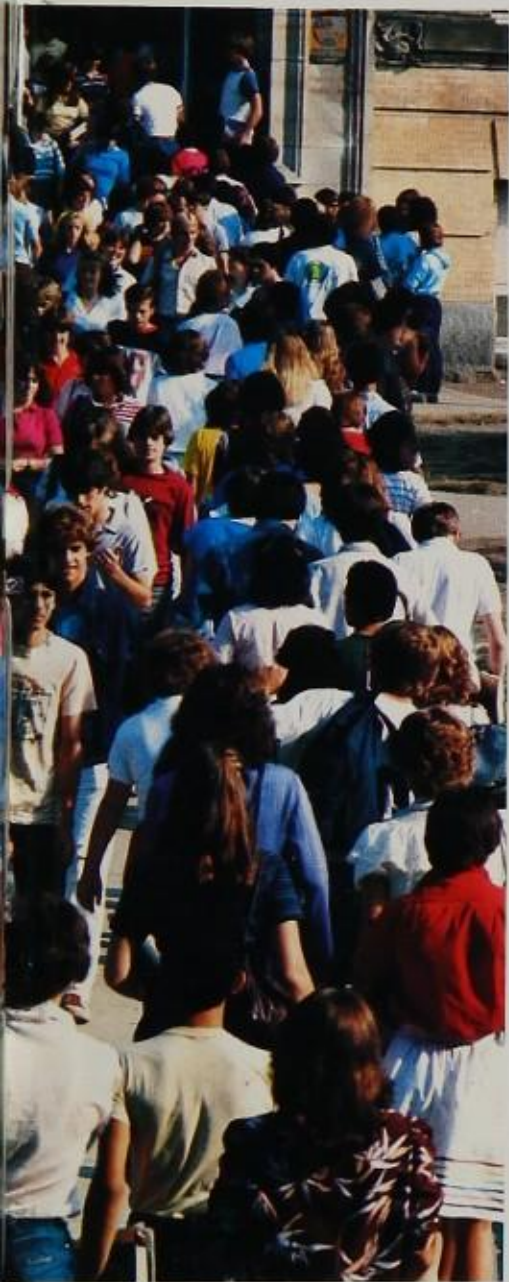

LEAD ESSENTIALS
The 5 W's and H
WHO? WHAT?
WHEN? WHERE?
WHY? HOW?

12

Learning to think and act according to our individual philosophies is an example of leadership. It is important that we think our own thoughts without worrying about being different. If "everyone does it," does that make it right?

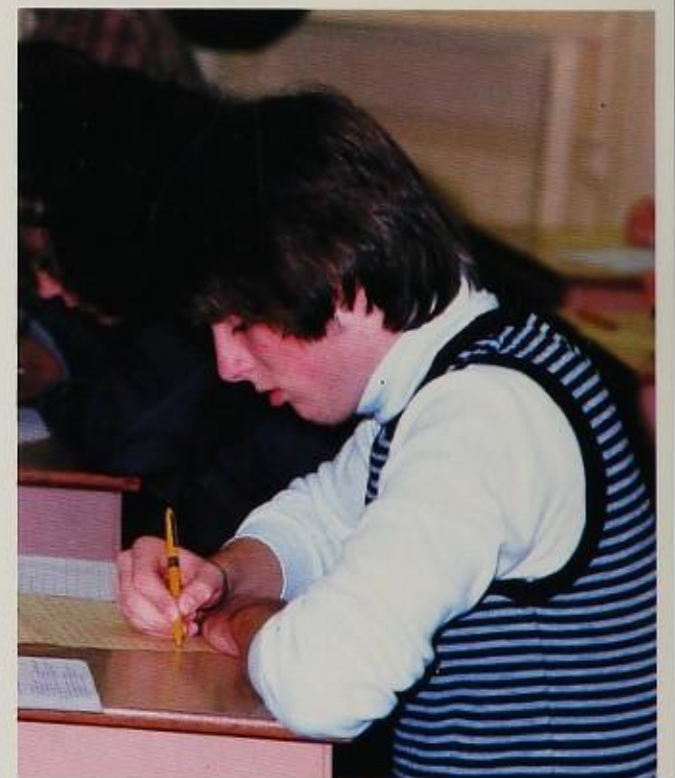

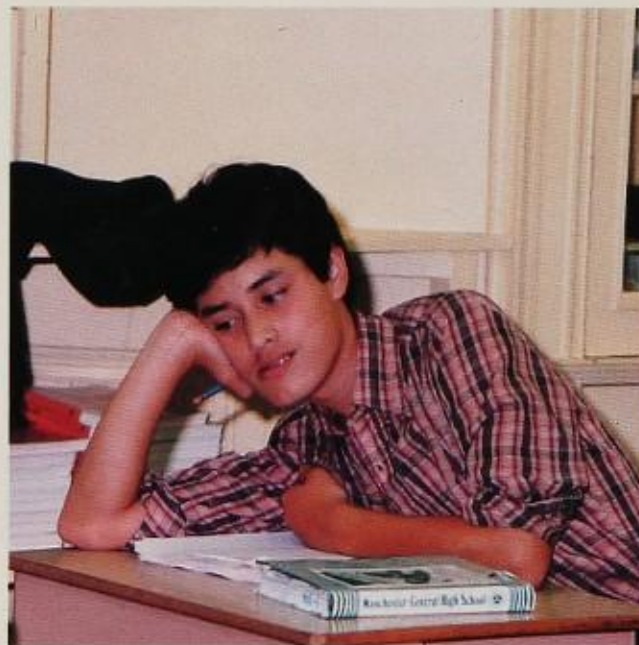

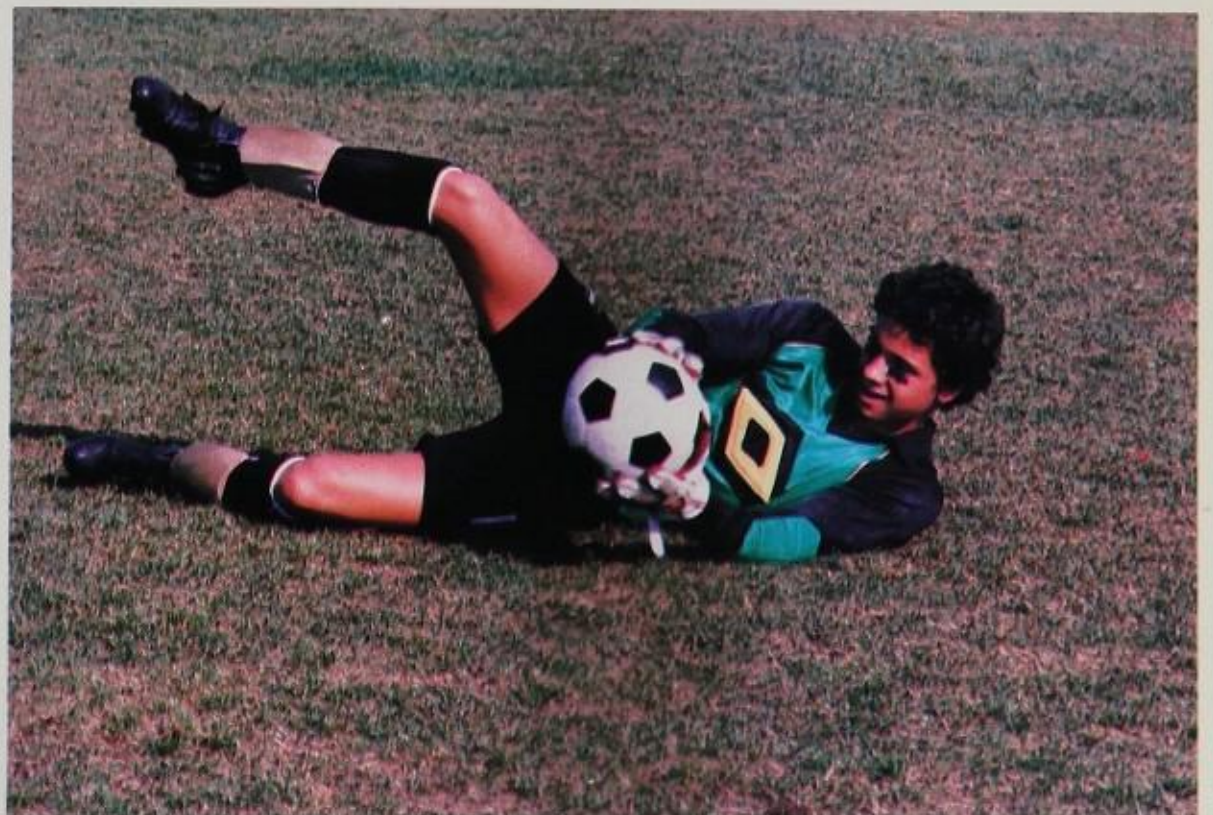

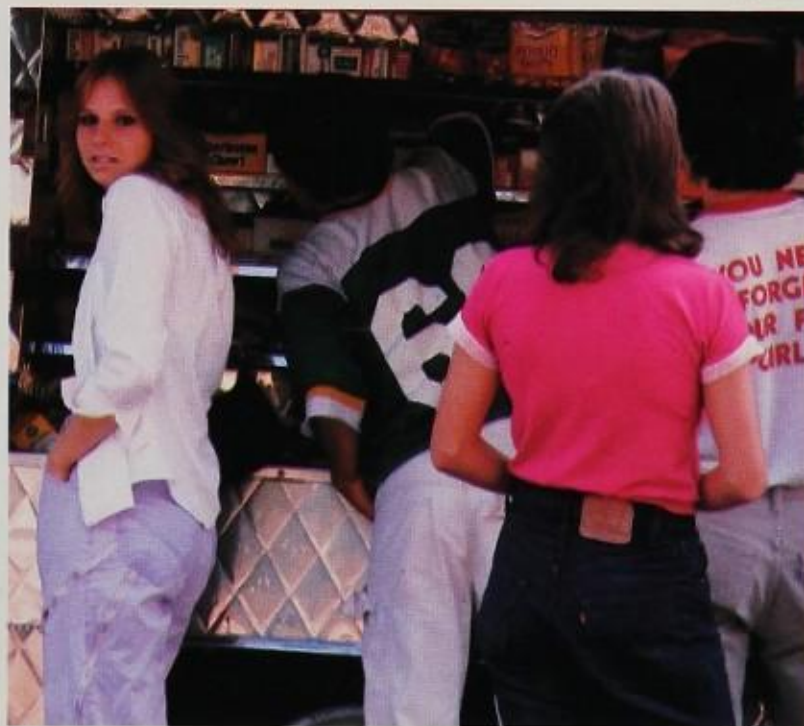

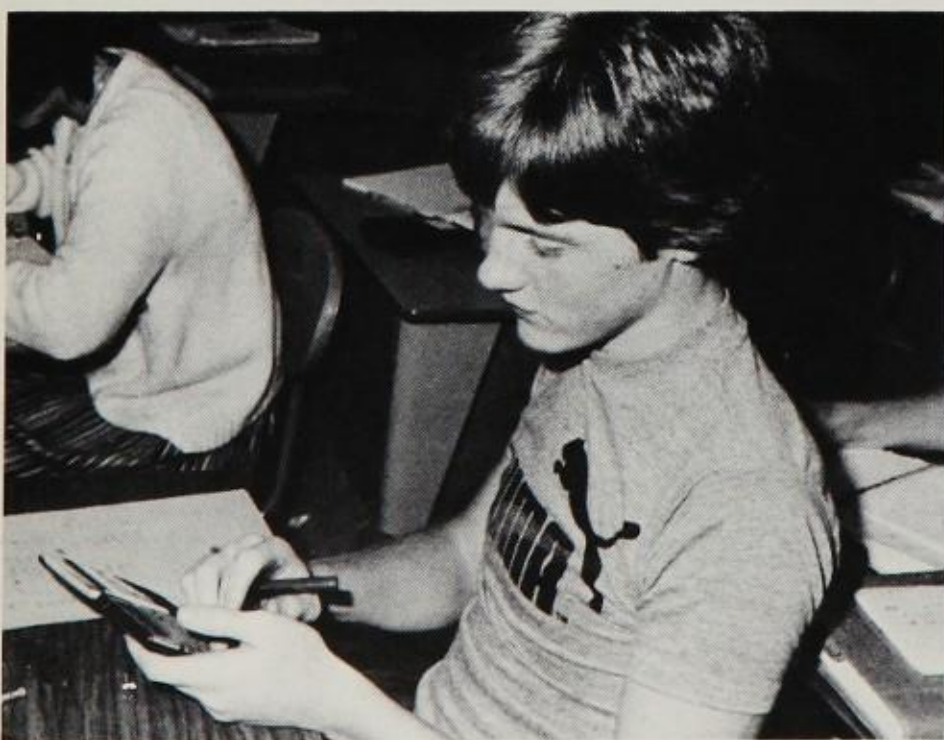

Bringing home books to study shows the student's determination to learn. By doing this, they are improving themselves and the world around them through knowledge.

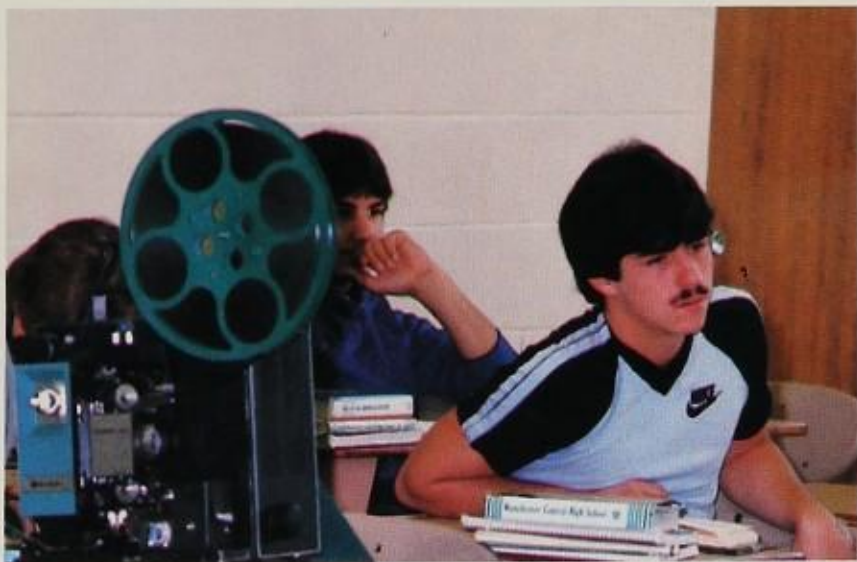

Leadership is asking questions, it is taking the initiative to persevere and draw conclusions. It is taking the time to listen to the problems of others and guiding them in the process of drawing their own conclusions. Being a leader means caring enough to ask the questions and caring enough to answer them.

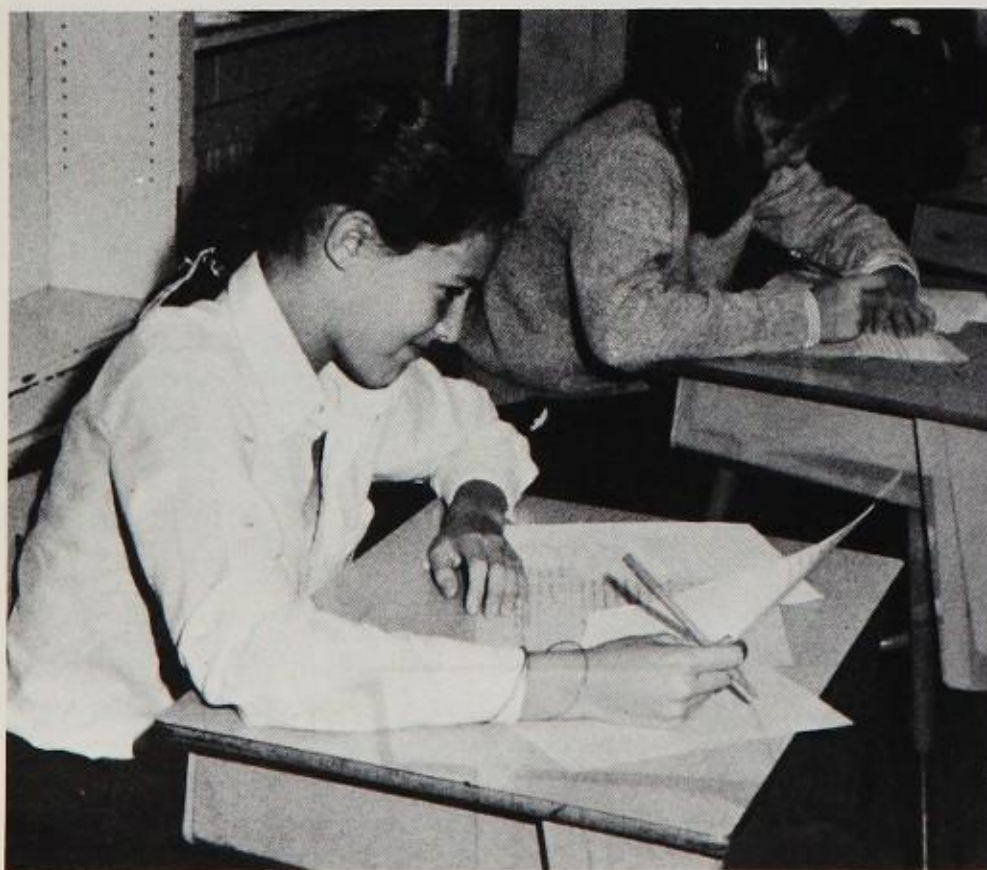

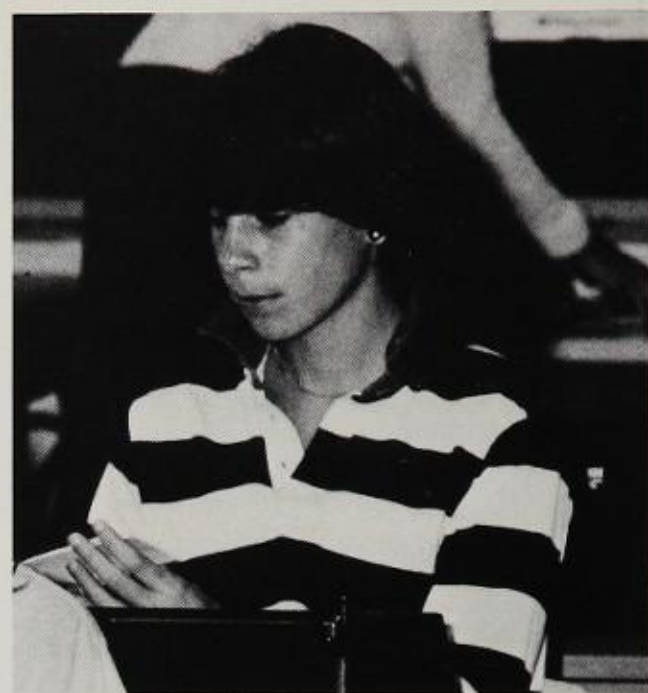

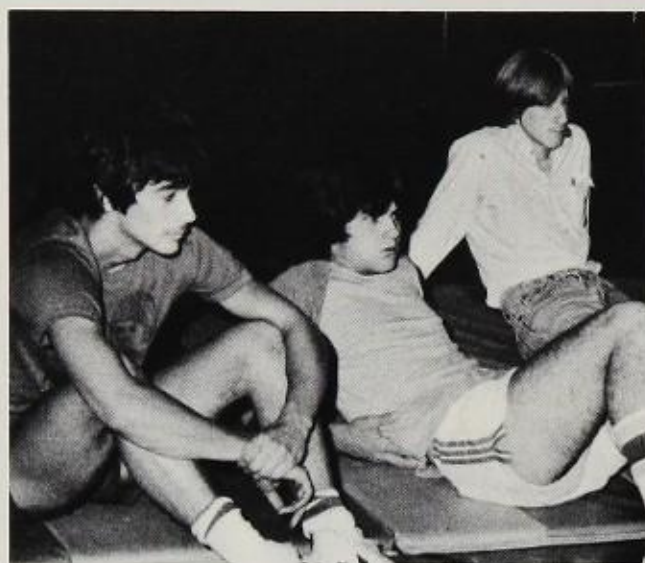

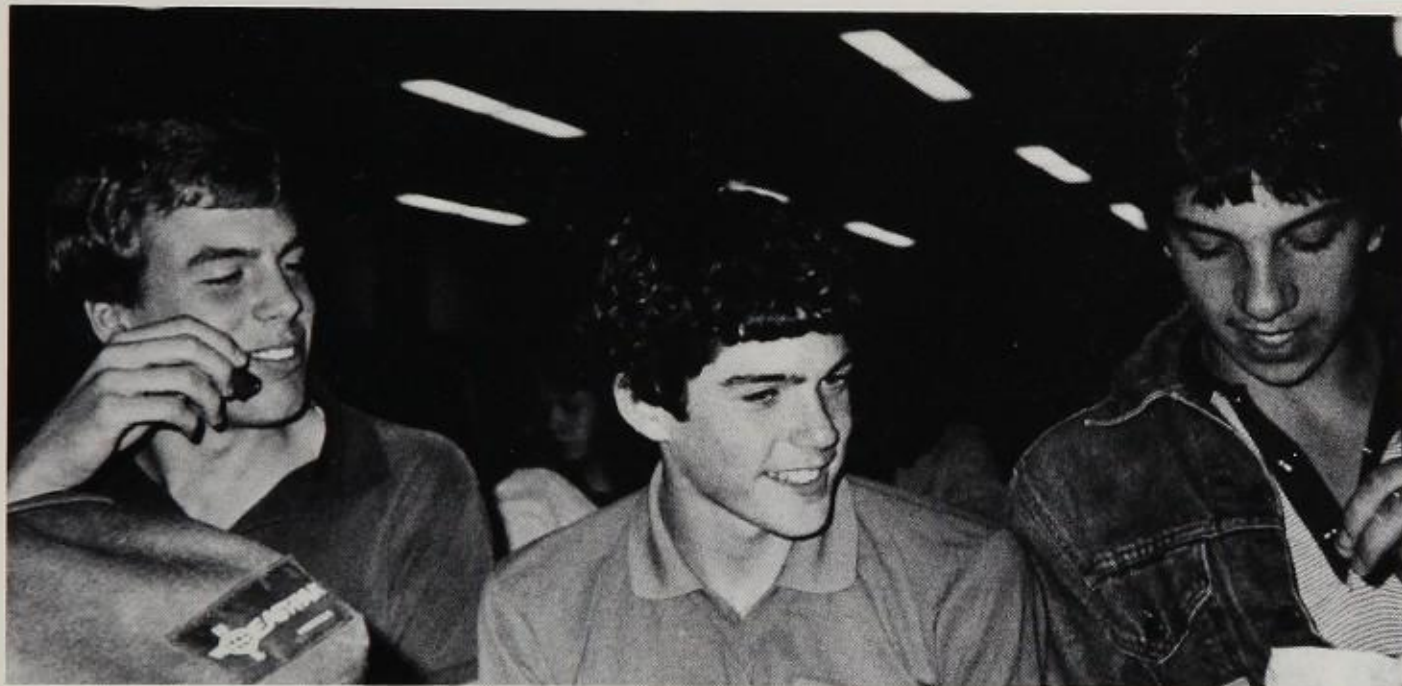

There are enough things in this world which are depressing. Those who provide us with entertainment through joke-telling, laughing, or other individual talents, are making society a better place in which to live.

We must have an open mind when discussing ideas with others. Even if we believe we are one hundred percent correct in our reasoning, it is still worth the time and effort to listen to what others have to say. Then we must explain to them why they are wrong or our knowledge is worthless.

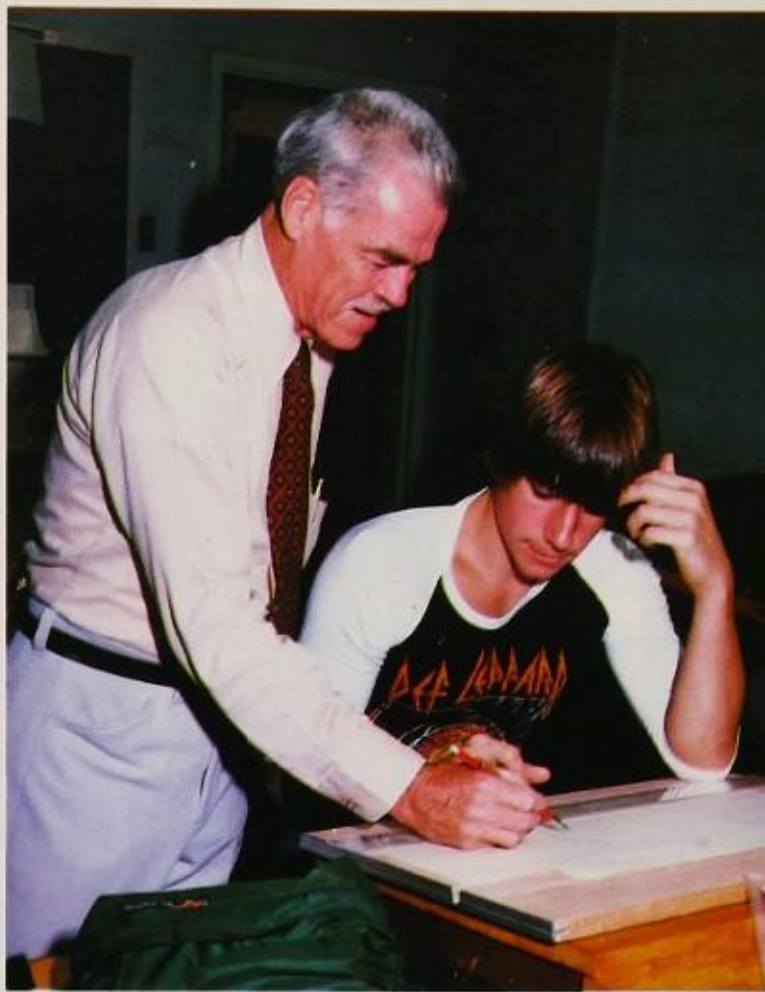

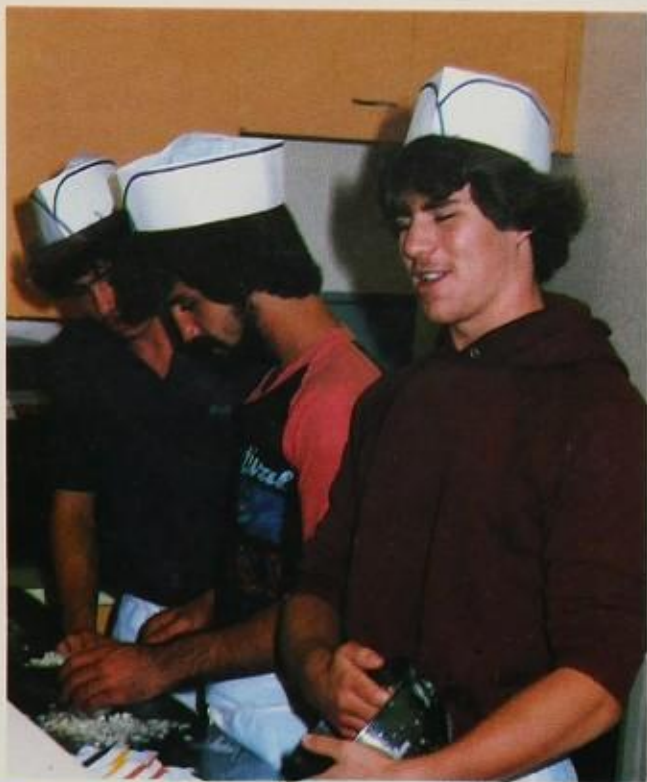

Students are also leaders outside of school. Besides their regular school activities, many take on outside jobs. Though some feel overburdened with added tasks, these students handle both school and work related activities.

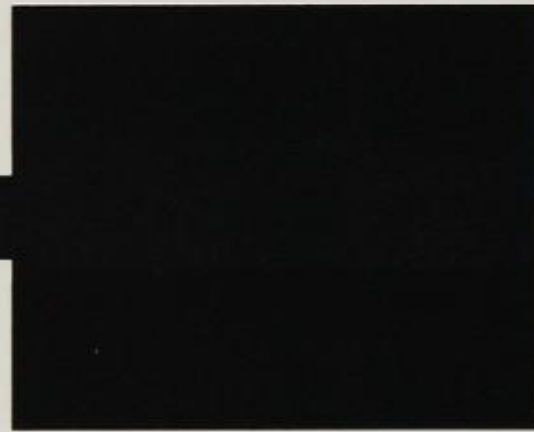

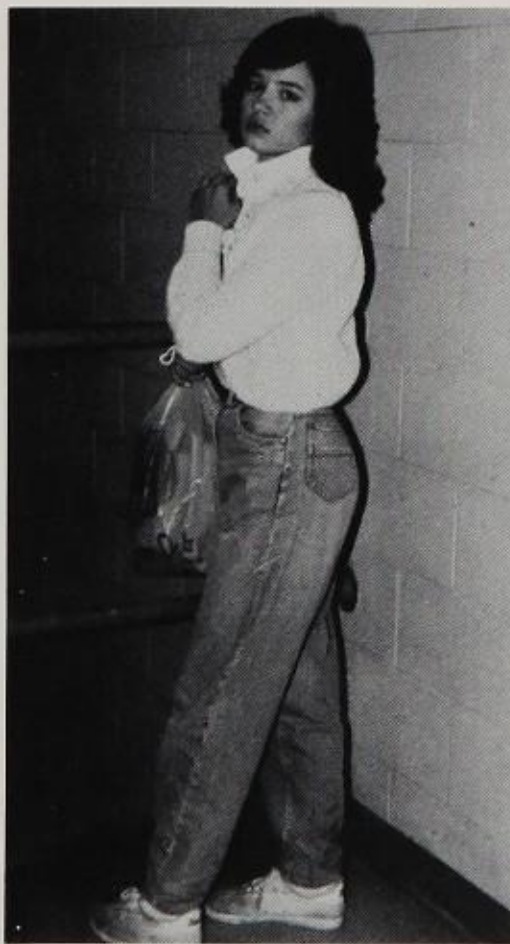

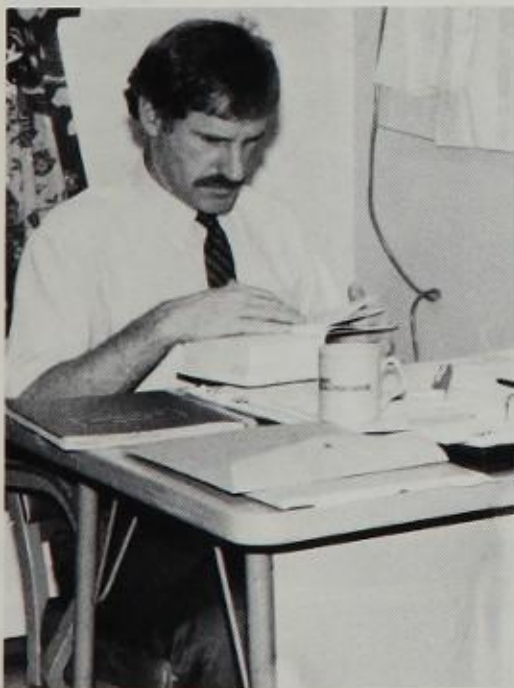

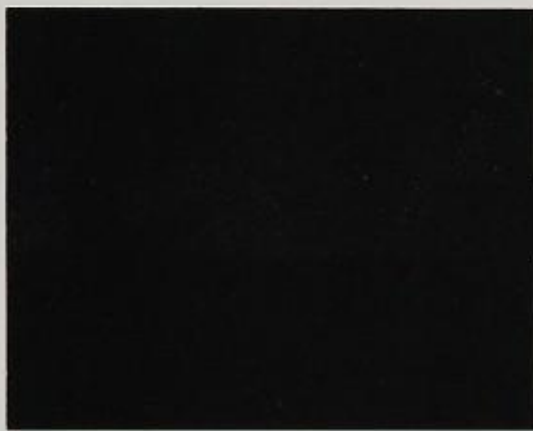

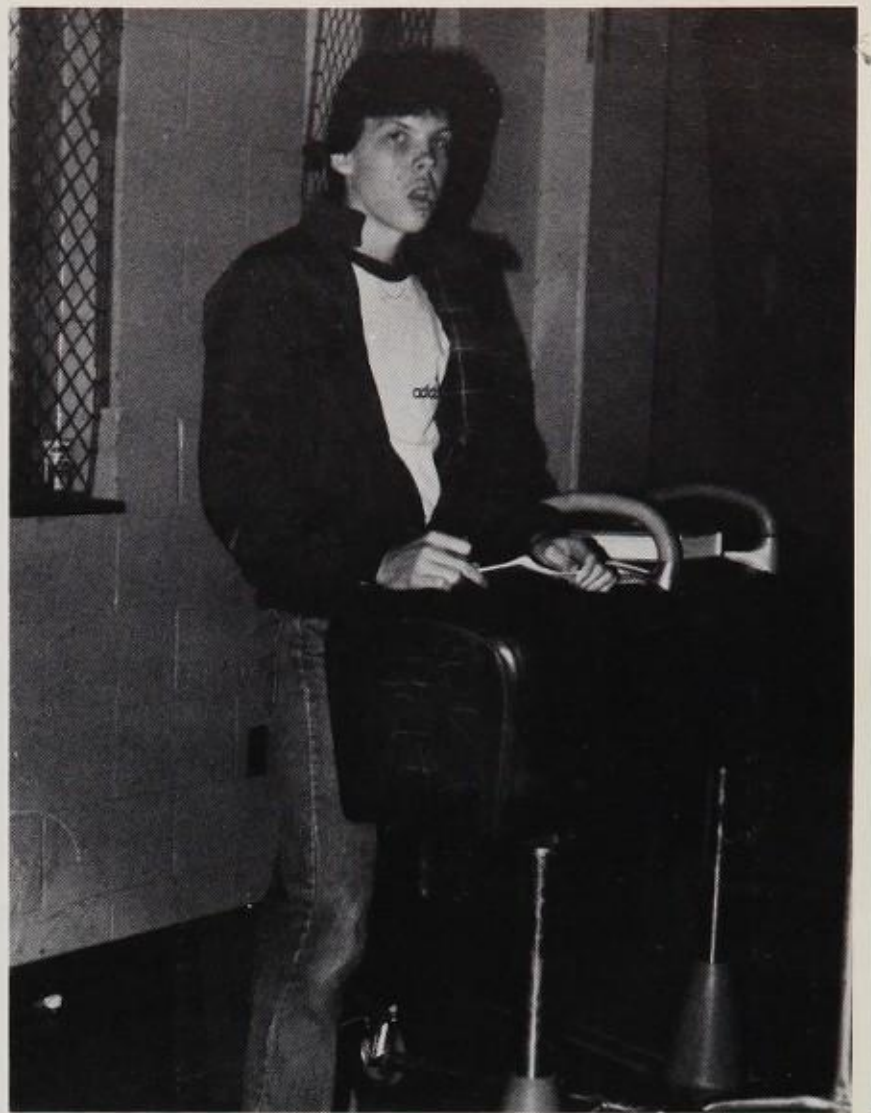

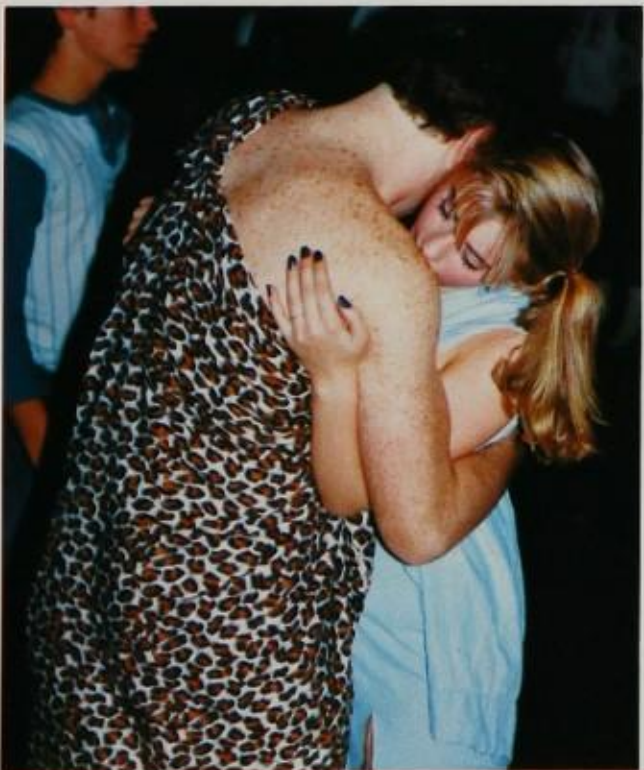

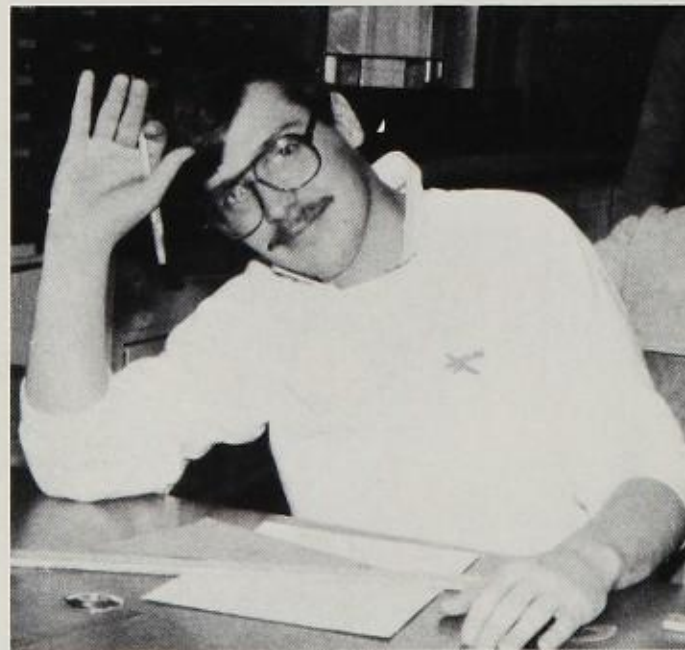

Leaders also unify a school by attending functions and participating in school activities. They go all out to support their school and their friends, and others follow their example.

Patricia Shappell

Mrs. Shappell has avoided a trap that many advisors might fall into. She doesn't inflict her opinions on anyone. — David Scannell

She's really interested in students' ideas. — J. Bigelow

Whenever I think of cute Mrs. Shappell, all I can do is smile. — Kris Havelas

Mrs. Shappell always volunteers her suggestions and insights. She values students' opinions and respects students' abilities to make decisions. She is nothing short of super. — Russ Muirhead

She has a remarkable capacity to understand. — Aime

Pooh wanted to be a knight, so Christopher Robin took a stick and touched his shoulder and said, "Rise, Sir Pooh de Bear." Pooh rose and said, "Thank-you". — Pamela Moreau

"Nor knowest thou what argument thy life to thy neighbor's creed has lent. All are needed by each one; nothing is fair or good alone."

— Emerson

As the students shuffle out of her room she calls after them, "Keep Smiling!" Patricia Shappell seems to follow this philosophy — she is a woman of spirit and compassion. Her students consider her a little flighty, and perhaps she does have just a bit of Don Quixote in her; that comical quality which makes her different.

She is a dedicated English teacher, stating once, "I love words." She requests input from her students, resulting in two-way learning. She is assertive, yet personable. — Her character almost compels her students to want to learn.

As an advisor to the Class of 1984, she "rules" with ultimate fairness, acting more as a guide than an authoritative leader. She is open and supportive of ideas; creative and spontaneous in her own right. Mrs. Shappell is our base from which we experiment, allowing us to err, if we may, or achieve success.

Yet Patricia Shappell goes beyond the limits of a teacher or an advisor. Some think of her as a mother figure, treating her "children" with Dunkin Munchkins on exam days. She never hesitates to offer advice or lend a sympathetic ear. She unselfishly divides her time among students, from committee meetings and trips to the bank; creating a certain equilibrium.

We, the class of 1984, dedicate the Aglaia to Patricia Shappell who seems to emulate Katherine Hepburn's philosophy by "never losing sight of the fact that just being is fun."

Ask most Central students what their most challenging course at Central is and Mr. Covatis' Biology class always enters into the conversation. Most will quickly add that it was worth the effort for the amount of knowledge gained from the experience was "phenomenal."

classroom. He has served on a number of school related committees and his attendance at numerous school events has helped to make education and school life better for all students. He has been seen running on the basketball court as well as the stage. Although the biology he taught the M.A.S.H. unit left the students wondering... A CAT SCAN...?

Contrary to the stern outward appearance which he portrays while teaching, Mr. Covatis possesses an amiable sense of humor as well as a sincere interest in his students, both of which make him an even more interesting teacher and even better person.

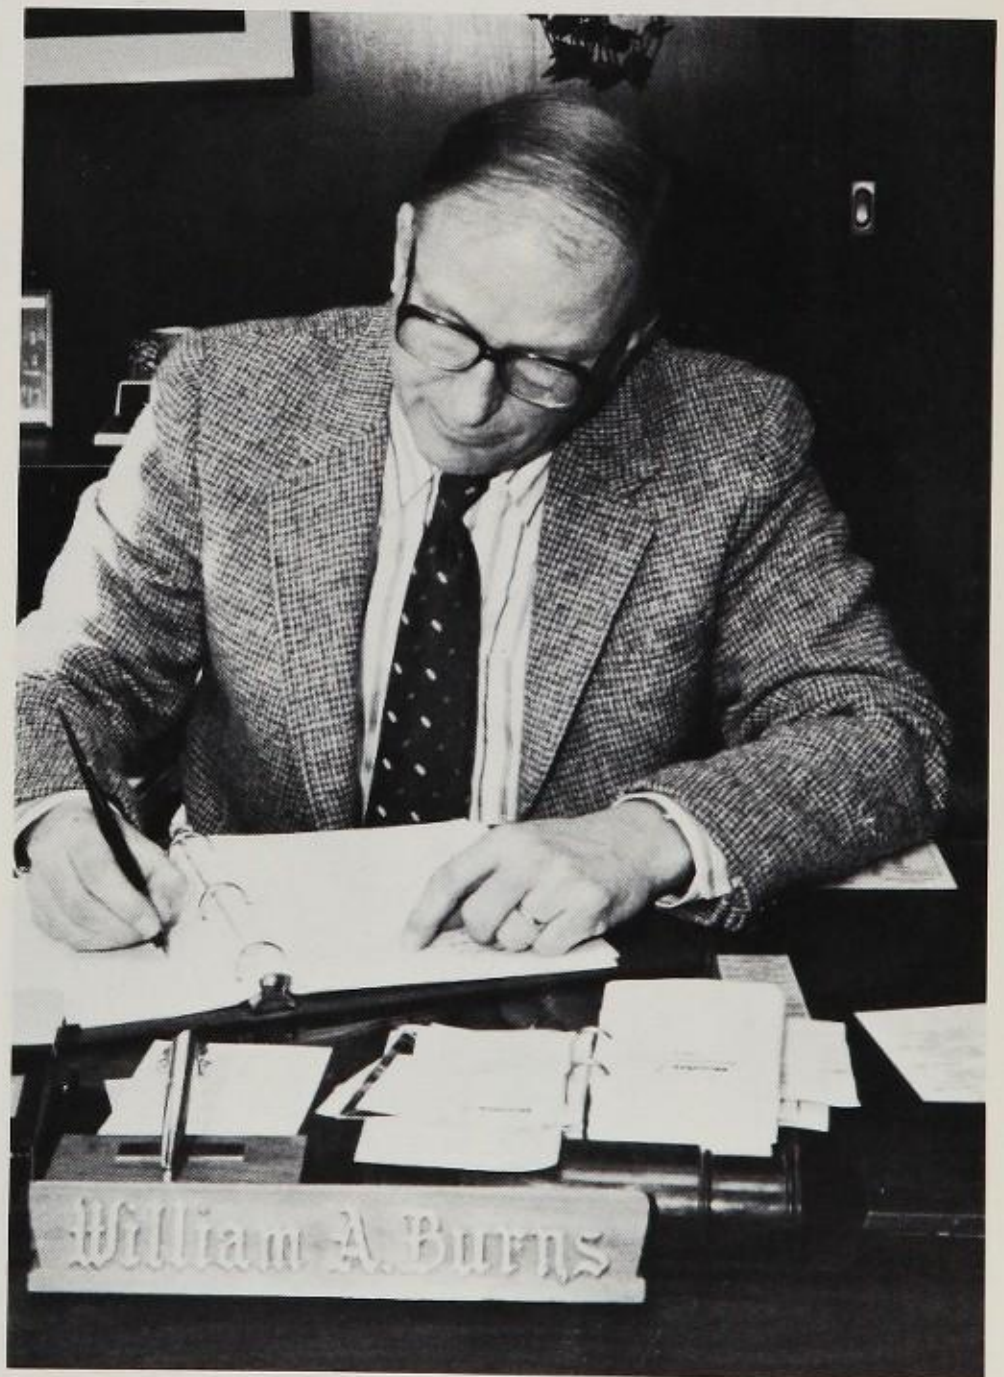

For these reasons the Aglaia staff has chosen Mr. Covatis as the recipient of this year's tribute. Thank you, Mr. Covatis for teaching classes which not only induce students to think, but also create an aura of fascination.

Varsity Football

A disappointing 4-5 record didn't seem to do justice to the 1983 Varsity Football team under the leadership of first year Head Coach Fred Cole. Despite their record, team members never stopped working hard or putting forth a team effort.

Senior tri-captains Brian Smith, Carl Bunis, and Eric Palangos did their best to keep the team together. Their efforts were well-rewarded throughout the regular season, as the gridmen earned many key victories.

Highly ranked teams from both Trinity and Portsmouth fell at the hands of a tough group of Little Green gridsters. Central found itself matched up against the Pioneers for a third time on Thanksgiving Day. This outing however, did not end successfully for the Little Green as they suffered a disastrous loss of 40-11.

Retiring seniors Brian Allaire, J. B. Smith, Sean Quinn, Kevin Grady, Bill Meisel, Kent Holtzhouser, Max Chiasson, Tom Balon, Ed O'Brien, Tony Vaillancourt, and Darrel Fitzsimmons put forth a valiant effort to do their school proud.

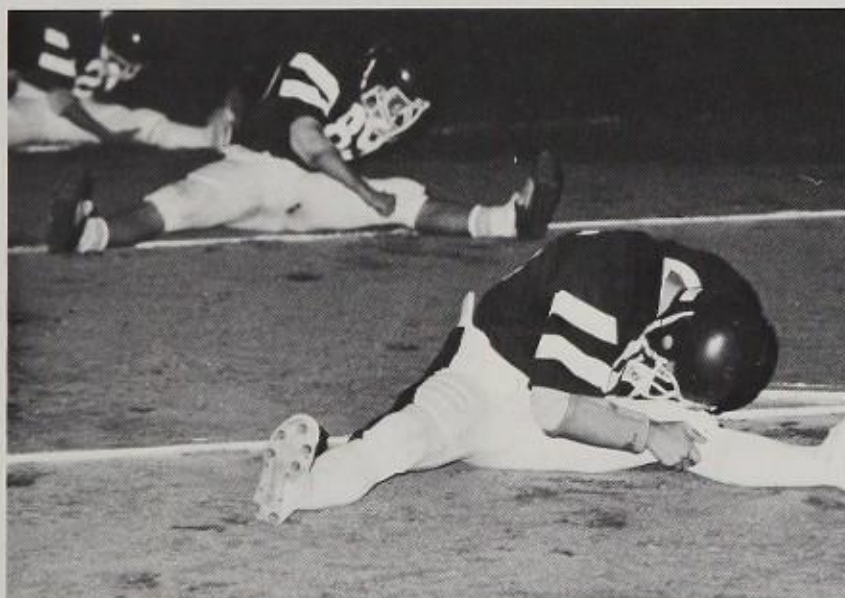

The 1983 team would like to thank coaches Fred Cole, Dennis Richmond, Bob Kerrigan, and Jack Sopol for all their help and guidance.

The summer of '83 found the girls' Varsity Soccer Team looking to replace the seven seniors lost the previous year. Coach John Marston had no shortage of young talent to complement his eight returning seniors. Both veterans and newcomers endured three weeks of grueling conditioning and preseason action. By the start of the regular season, the booters were ready to field an impressive new lineup for the first time in two years. Eight seniors, two juniors, five sophomores, and two freshmen combined to form one of the most talented, spirited and unified teams Central had ever seen.

The 1983 squad, as well as the coach, entered into the season with a positive, new attitude. For the first time in two years, the girls found themselves relying on each other. This year there were no one man shows, and a strong passing game became the Little Green's main offensive tactic. Under the leadership of co-captains Patty Larkin and Pam Moreau, the team finished the regular season with an impressive 9-3-2 record.

It seemed the two-time defending state champions were headed for their third consecutive title, but it was not meant to be. Injury befell the squad at the most inopportune moments.

Starting fullback Jill Dorson was forced to undergo knee surgery and was unable to play for the remainder of the season. Both Peaches Kelley and Kelly Healey fell victims to head injuries, though each girl recovered fully after having stitches. After beginning the tournament with a 7th place berth, the Little Green suffered a heart-breaking loss in quarter-final action.

Despite the disappointing loss on that cold November day, the booters boasted the talents of All-State picks Patty Larkin and Peaches Kelley, as well as third team pick Pam Moreau. The talents of these girls, plus the skill, determination and intensity of every team member, combined to make the 1983 girls' Varsity Soccer Team one that would not soon be forgotten.

It was to be a great year for coach Jim Stevenson's boys' varsity soccer team, entering the regular season with an 8-2 pre-season record. The first two games exemplified the potential of the squad as they won both games with shutouts.

Unfortunately, from that point something became lost. It was not their teamwork, their intensity, or their determination, for these traits were displayed continuously. Of the seven losses suffered by the Little Green, five were by a solitary goal.

However, the team did play well when they had to, defeating four state tournament bound teams before losing to the defending state champions, Pinkerton, in double overtime.

Leading the squad to more than double the wins of the previous year were senior co-captains Chris Laberge and Roger Boisse.

Sporting an impressive 11-7 regular season record, the boys' varsity basketball squad did Central proud. Second year head coach Jay DuFour led his team with a certain style and finesse.

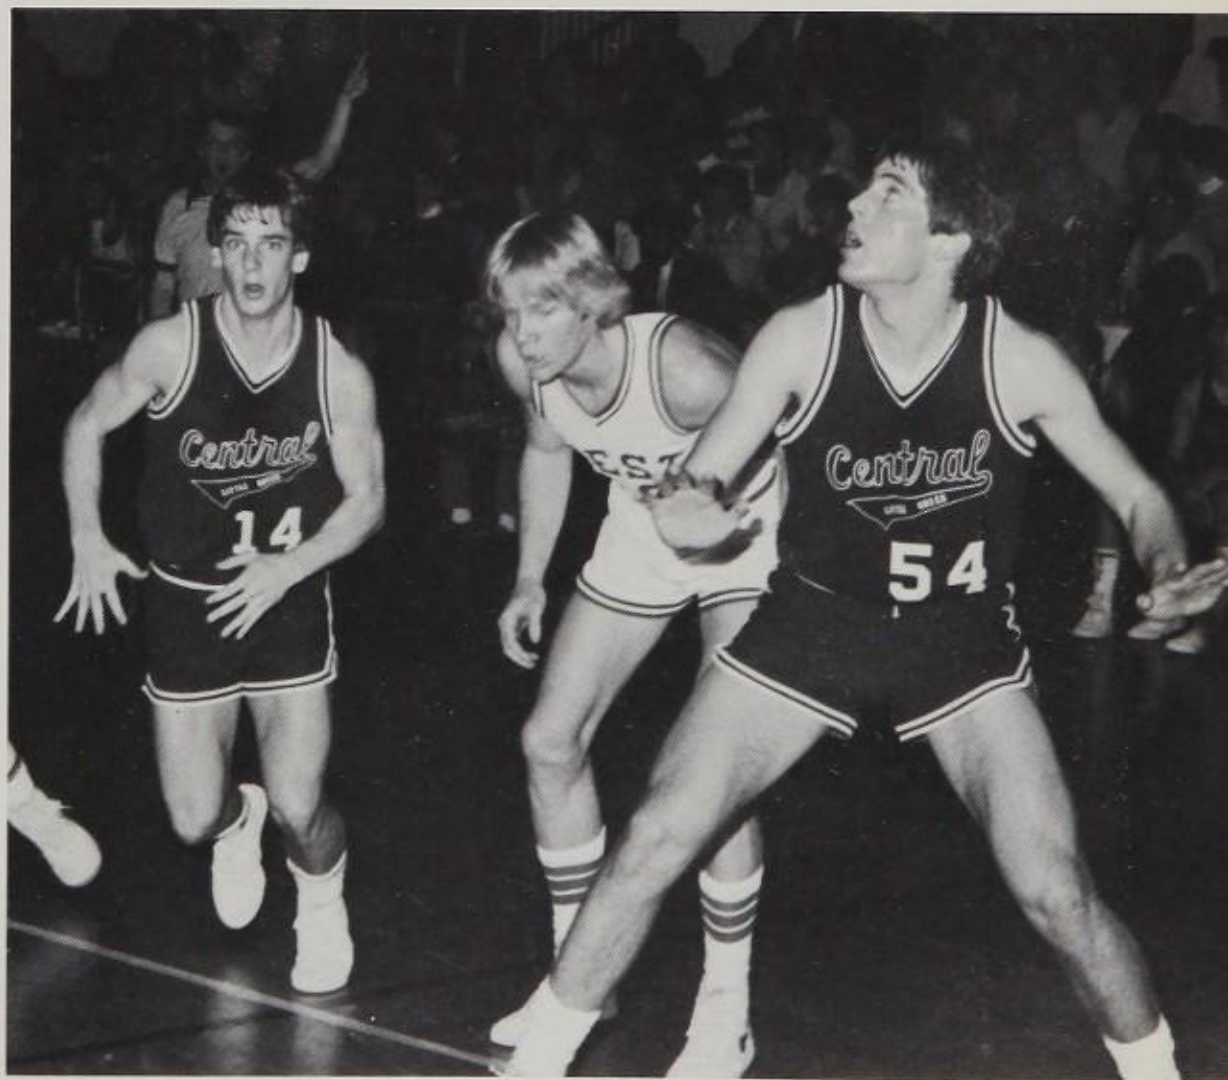

The Little Green was a top contender throughout the season and into the tournament with victories over such respected teams as Nashua and Dover. The boys were at their best in December as they hosted the annual Christmas Tournament. Though the hoopsters failed to capture the first place trophy, they did play in the final match against a Cambridge team, termed "Massachusetts best."

The Little Green did, however, manage to remain undefeated in the Queen City, thus garnering the City Crown once again. Victories such as this kept the Varsity '5' well-respected.

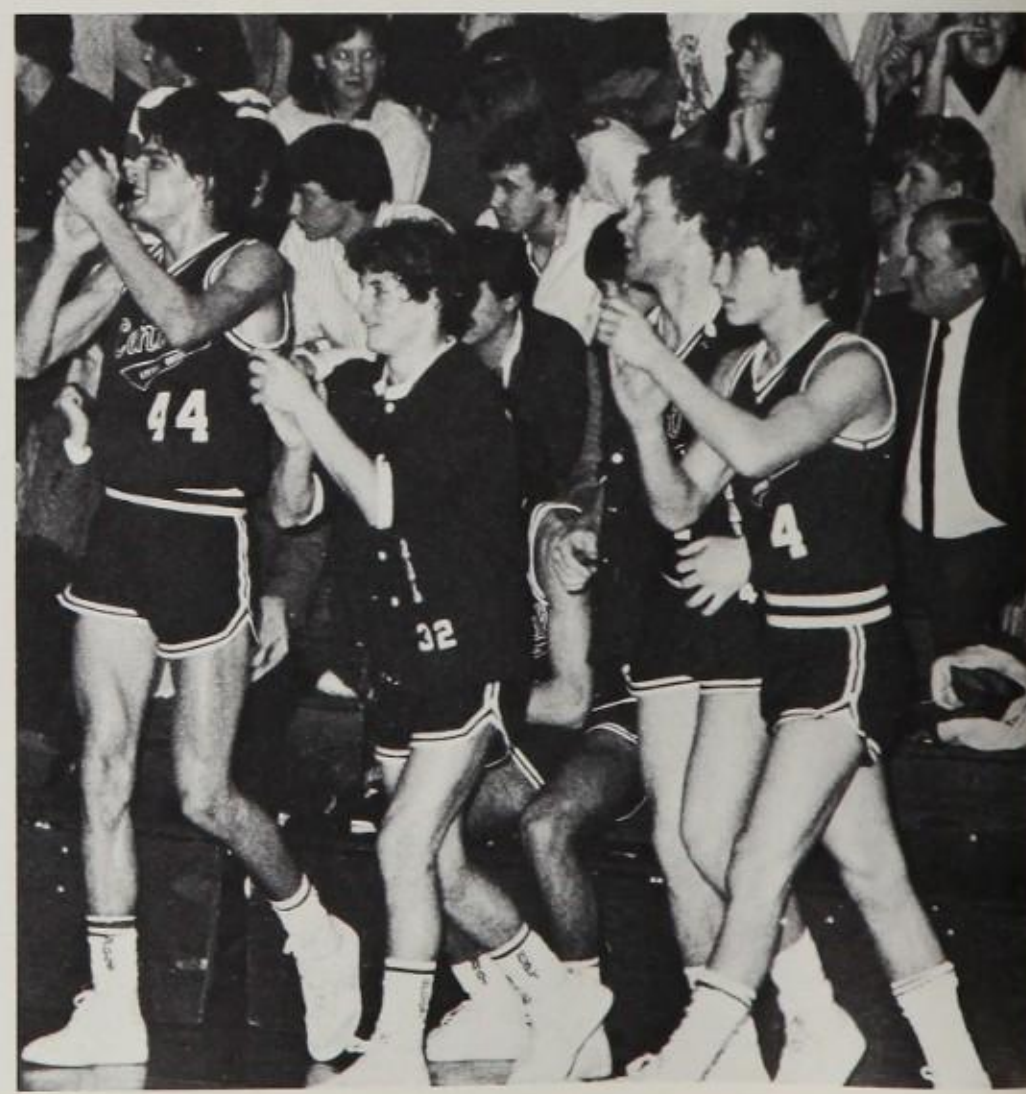

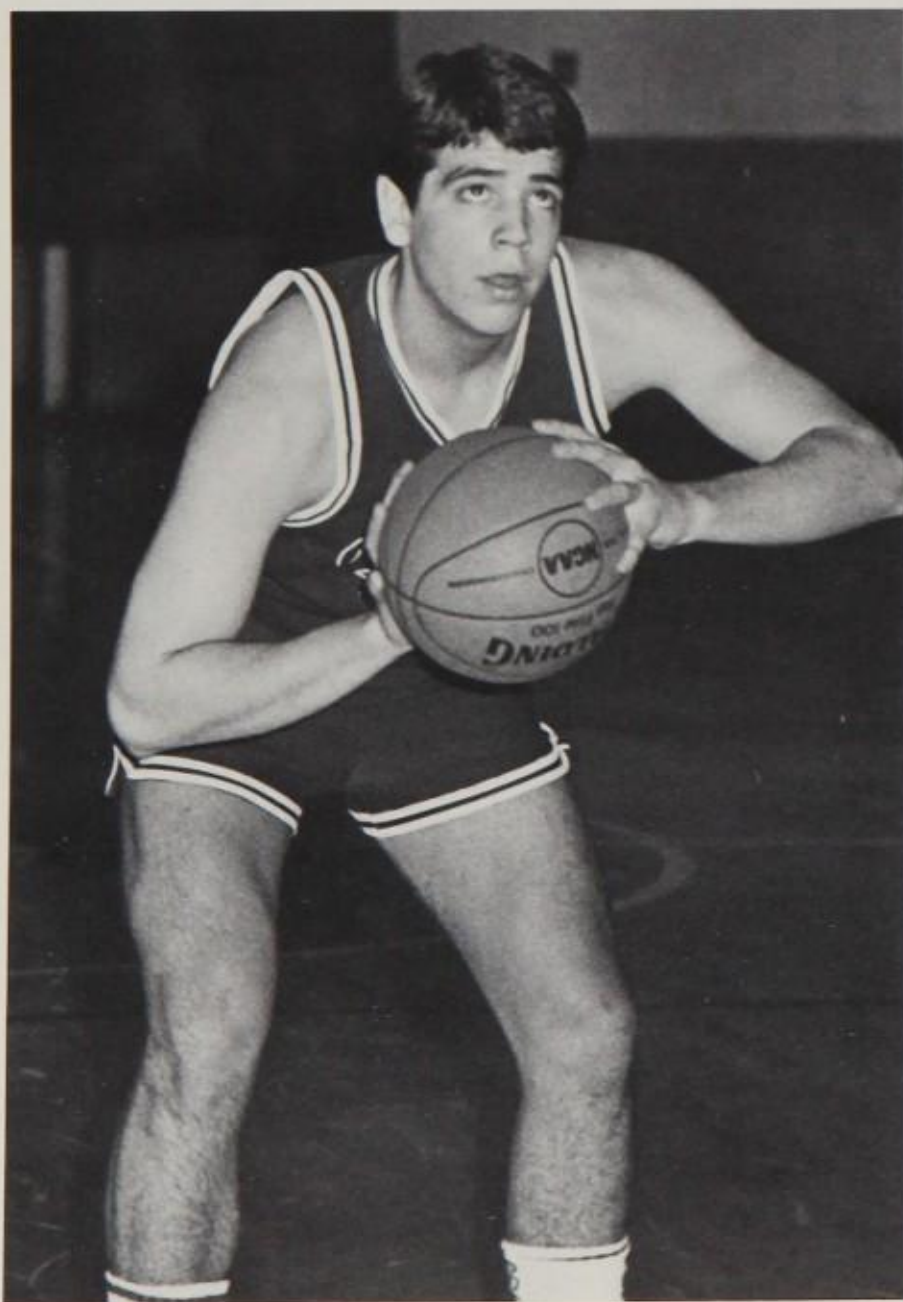

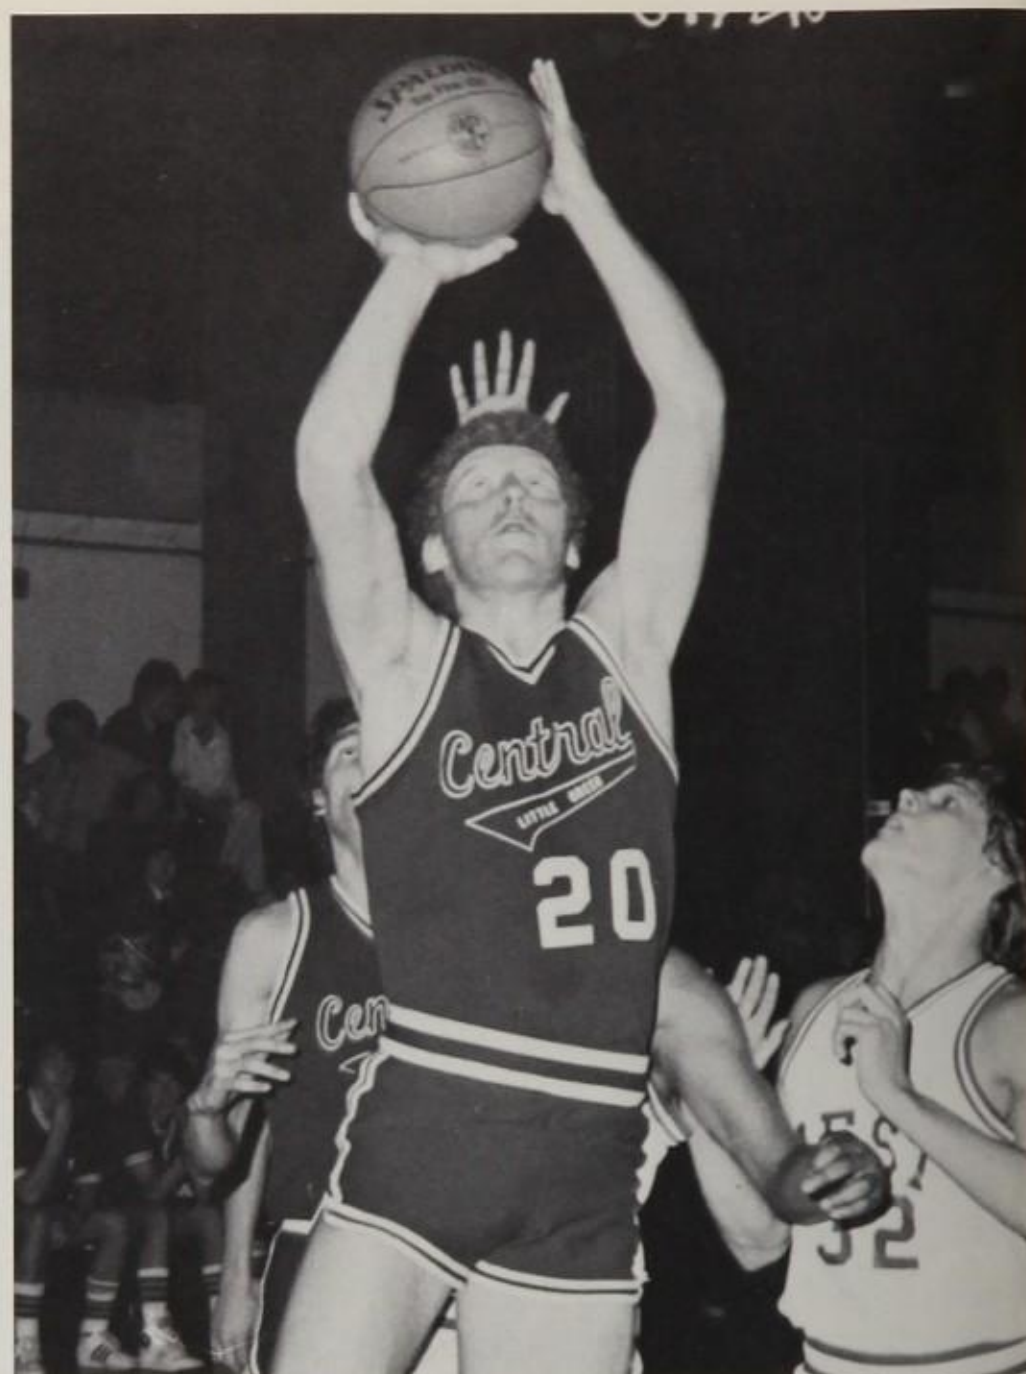

Senior standout David Stidsny was chosen by his teammates to captain the Little Green in its 1983-1984 campaign. David's consistently outstanding play on the court proved him worthy of this title. The duties of co-captain were shared by the remaining seniors.

Senior pride played a large role in this team's success as guards Peter Evans, Richard Girard, and Mickey Gomes teamed up with forwards Brendan Perry, Mickey Spain, and Stiasny to provide a solid starting lineup.

Their undying effort, enthusiasm, and dedication can best be characterized by their performance on the court and those two little words that mean so much, "Central Pride."

The 1983-84 girls' basketball squad had a tough season as they opened with a less than perfect record. As the season progressed everything slowly came together as they combined talent and spirit with several winning streaks to post an honorable 13-5 regular schedule record.

Coach Ed Sides did his job well with this team as he and co-captains Patty Larkin and Judy Wojcik led these hoopsters to the semi-final round of post-season competition. Nashua proved to be the thorn in Central's side as the Panthers burst the Little Green's state championship hopes in a hard fought battle. The girls did, however, prove themselves worthy of any competition as they gave a top-ranked Winnacunnet squad its only black mark in one of the most exciting confrontations of the season.

The starting '5' contained captains Larkin and Wojcik regularly as these two showed their teammates outstanding basketball on the court and the meanings of teamwork and friendship off the court. These two coupled with seniors Carole Groves and Peaches Kelley to make up one of the most unified teams at CHS in years.

It seemed that very little could stop the Central Varsity Hockey team as it entered into its '83-'84 season. At the outset a 9-1 record made the Little Green almost untouchable as it led the class 'L' in Wins. This success was due greatly to the star performances of seniors Dave Connare, Brian Stone, and Mike Potvin who made up the top ranked scoring line in N.H.

Throughout the season the Little Green scattered their losses and posted an impressive regular season record of 14-4. It was good enough for fourth place and a bye in post-season tourney action where Central went on to face West, but came up empty-handed despite an all out effort.

The 1983-1984 Central Varsity Hockey team was full of experience as it included twelve seniors. Under the leadership of captain Stone and co-captains Connare and Potvin, as well as the guidance of coach Walter Tate, the whole team came together when it counted, truly exemplifying Central pride and spirit.

The Central Girl's Winter Track Team had an outstanding season this year. At the start of the 1983-1984 season the team was faced with an enormous task of carrying their undefeated streak through another season.

The team, led by coach Joe O'Neal, accomplished this task, defeating every opponent by at least 40 points. The team's depth and unity were shown to the state as they received the title of "Team of the Year" for the second consecutive year.

This group of athletes could not be stopped after winning this award, however the 1983-1984 team wanted to retain the state title which they had garnered the previous year.

On February 3, 1983 the team traveled to the Paul Sweet oval at U.N.H. with feelings of uneasiness in their stomachs. With the tremendous efforts of Kris Havelas, Kris Stone, Heather Makere, Mary Ellen Deroschers, Wendy Smith, Nancy Boulanger, and the all out support of the entire team, the girls managed to keep the State Championship honors at Central, where they belong.

The Year in Review

From the 1984 presidential election to the war in Lebanon, this year has been one to remember.

As any year, this one has been filled with good and bad times. The downing of the Korean airline flight KAL007 and the heightening of the arms race, along with the death of Soviet leader Yuri Andropov, has put an even greater strain on U.S.-Soviet relations.

Unlike the landslide Soviet victory won by Konstantin Chernenko, U.S. voters had a hard time deciding on the democratic candidate who will face Ronald Reagan in the fall general election. Only time will tell whether Colorado Senator Gary Hart or former vice president Walter Mondale runs against Reagan in the 1984 presidential election.

The Olympics provided us with a diversion from the gory scene in Lebanon El Salvador, and despite the disappointment of our hockey team, our athletes managed to garner a number of medals in various other events.

Choice comments by former Secretary of the Interior, James Watt, provided entertainment, while various conservationists were warning us of the danger of acid rain and governmental intrusion on our national parks and lands.

A devastating $200 billion deficit hung over our heads by the end of the year, but somehow the dollar remained strong and the economy was soaring.

The break-up of AT&T was a big step in the practice of anti-trusts and the American automobile industry finally appeared to have rebounded.

What next for the class of 1984? Hopefully, nothing but good news — it is up to us to create it though.

A large, stylized black and white illustration of a bottle pouring liquid. The bottle is tilted from the top left, with a label that appears to say 'VITRO'. A stream of liquid falls from the neck, forming several teardrop shapes as it descends. At the bottom, the liquid has pooled into a large, irregular shape. Inside this pool, the words 'THANK YOU' are written in a bold, blocky, sans-serif font. The 'T' is partially submerged in the liquid.
